“ I'm just now hearing about his passing and I'm very saddened by this. I was his VA rep at Lincoln and I always looked forward to seeing him. He would always go out of his way to come see me. Definitely one of my favorite Veterans. RIP. Prayers to his family and friends!

“ *Christopher: bearing Christ
Michael: who is like God?
Chris undoubtedly lived up to his name; he was the most Christ-like man I have ever had the honor of meeting and quite possibly ever will. The first time I met him I was intimidated by his size but it didn't take long for me to see that the size of his heart well surpassed that of his physical being. Words fail to explain the man I came to know Chris as and how thankful I am that God allowed us to meet.*

“ Christopher: bearing Christ

Michael: one who is like God

Chris definitely lived up to his name. The first time I met Chris was at a little country store next to the church I attend. At first I was a little intimidated by his size, but it didn't take long for me to realize the size of his heart surpassed his physical appearance. I felt so small around him, yet he always built me up and encouraged me. For a little while, we were neighbors and I was overjoyed when he started visiting the church. We talked quite a bit for a while, and he would often times stop by the church on Saturday to visit me as I cleaned the building. Our conversations rarely strayed from God. I shared information and so did He. When he left that church, I was saddened, but we remained in contact at times. The last time I remember talking to him, he called because he saw some turkeys and they reminded him of me and my love of turkey hunting. Chris's love of God and his willingness to help anyone will forever remain in my heart. I love you brother!

“ Chris McKeever had to be one of the most interesting people I have ever met. He could hold my attention for along time. That takes a lot. He had the heart of a giant. I have seen him go out of his way to help his friends. He was both an employee and a friend in the last couple of years. I have to say it was a pleasure being both. Chris was an excellent worker. He would give his work everything he had. That also holds true with his friendship with people. I wish I had kept in contact more over the last few months but life gets in the way sometimes. He was a Military brother to me. We shared a lot about our experiences in the service. Chris has a lot of friends that will carry his memory forward. Semper Fi.

“ Chris was such a kind soul. His dog Marley and he were frequent guests at my home. We considered him like family. I am so very sorry this happened. He loved the Lord. He loved his friends. Such a wonderful man gone too soon

“ Chris will be greatly missed by all of his friends and coworkers. He was a kind, gentle and honorable man, and shared a great sense of humor with all of us who worked with him.

“ Mr. Chris was a loud and proud man. He was an old school guy; He chose screwdrivers and ratchets over power tools. He always spoke of his American dream. He wanted a family, a horse, and lord help him a Ford truck. I'm happy to say he got his dream.

He was extremely respectful, I remember we went for lunch one day and after we prayed he started to eat and got a phone call. He looked at me and asked my permission to answer it; Manners like that are forgotten now days. You could set your watch by that fella, he was always the first to work.

We had a personal thing we did, Shenanigan Friday's. Eventually the whole shop got involved. This one day I found some ridiculously tough Styrofoam, I raised my eyebrows at him and we took off running outside. Most of the time we could look at each other and be on the same page. We proceeded to use them as punching bags and he says watch this. If you ever met Chris, big man defines him to a T. This guy, of all things, spin kicks the Styrofoam right away from my face. No miss, no effort, just all Marine.

I don't have a clue what the family feels, but everyone at the shop misses him. No one has touched his parking spot or locker. We like the way Chris uplifted this company and I for one, want it to stay that way. I personally feel lonely now that he's gone; We would always chat in the mornings and the evenings. He even had a special little call he did to get me to quit working late. Chris used to joke that I seen him more than his family did. I know words mean very little but know that we cared about him. We all miss you Green bean!

Deepest regards,

“ As we all travel thru this life, we encounter many individuals whom leave a lasting impression upon our being. Chris McKeever was one of those whom affected me, in a positive way. Chris would often share his struggles, victories, and his prayer time with me.....and he was ready to pray at the drop of a hat. Chris was humbled in the presence of our Lord and you could feel the love he held for everyone around him. His spirituality was very important to his every day endeavors and he was not ashamed to share it. I love Chris and he will be forever missed.
