“ Ladybug...that's what she called me at work. Cindy, you were everyone's friend. Always offering help when I needed, you could fix the copiers and check folding machines when they broke, change the toner if I was wearing white that day, the last one to leave, just putting in more than was asked of. I enjoyed making the Hostess Ding Dong cake for your birthday and you making chocolate gravy every office Christmas party. You would take the lead with department decorating during Halloween and Christmas parties. Listening to you and Kent's deer hunting stories and all the things you could make from deer meat. You, my dear Cindy, were the true definition of a friend, and I'm glad you were mine. Kent, my heart aches for you and the rest of her family. God Bless you ❤️

“ Cindy was my inspiration, she was so strong and determined. Cindy I meant on one her cruise destination which included the Cayman Islands (I worked for the same payroll company at the time, in the Cayman Islands, and give Cindy a tour of the island). Cindy and I had a friendship like no other. It was a great pleasure to meet her. I love her spirit, motivation, she was a fighter to the end.

I will miss Cindy, but she left some great memories with me and will cherish our memories and she will always be in my heart ❤️

“ Ok so all my Wal~Mart peeps will remember this one. When Cindy got married and had her son she didn't have any milk for her mashed potatoes so as we all know she improvised and substituted with Simalac Milk. She came to work the next day telling us she might be divorced before long and then she told us the story of what she did. At any pot luck dinners we had from that point forward WE made sure Cindy didn't bring mashed potatoes. She loved to laugh and was very good at it. Would listen while you cry and make you laugh when you didn't want to. God has gained a beautiful soul that we will never forget. :)
