“ Anyone that sat down and talked with Eleanor would hear about her family. When I'd visit, she would show me pictures of her children and grandchildren and tell me about how pampered her granddaughters had made her feel when they came to visit her and how they cleaned her house and made her feel like a queen. She'd pull out the latest birthday or christmas card she'd received and usually tell a story or two about the sender. I loved her stories almost as much as the christmas cookies she baked. Most of the time she would put on her Bah humbug hat at christmas time and pretend she was being forced into the christmas spirit by her christmas loving Grand daughter but you could see the twinkle in her eyes. Eleanor Cox was an amazing lady that I will never forget.
