In retirement, she found many things to do to enjoy life. She became an artist. She took classes and did many types of paintings, sketches, and watercolor projects. She would often take photos so that she could later paint what she was seeing. She also had a love for antiques of all different kinds and found value in each one she had. She watched and enjoyed American Roadshow and American Pickers on TV. Her routine found her daily at Homestead restaurant, where she socialized with the other regulars. Homestead had a special place in her heart. She loved to spend time watching her birds from her deck while listening to windchimes in the breeze. She even had a chicken come to the house that she named Hattie the Hen. Above all these things she loved her family. Her husband of 54 years, and her girls. She was a truly beautiful person and will be deeply missed.

When I was a "little girl" in elementary school, I thought Janet was the prettiest "big girl" and wanted to be like her. She and her girls have special places in my heart.

“ Very few people come into our lives who make an impact like Janet King. Always thinking of ways to help someone, whether it be with a coat she thought they may need or an unexpected joke she could tell to make you smile. We shared the same sense of humor which has left me with so many wonderful memories. The thought of her will always bring a smile to my face and a funny story to my mind. Her paintings reflected her soul. Beautiful and amazing. She was my friend. She was my soul sister. I will miss you Madame Wild One. I will never forget your laughter.
